

• Fourth Grade News and Notes Week of September 2nd

Hello Fourth Grade Families!

Morning Meeting provides an opportunity for building and maintaining classroom community. Our morning meeting begins with greeting each other which sets the tone for our learning day. We look at the agenda for the day, and enjoy an activity or picture book. Morning meeting gets our day started right!

Class Brand Project: Wow! The kids are so full of ideas that this project has expanded! We have a music clip, still shots to accompany it, and a chorus of eight gals who wrote the lyrics and sing our "theme song!" The kids were even featured on the Darby Creek News. This first project is a springboard to a year of collaborative, student directed learning. Ask your fourth grader if they worked on visual, words/music or action shots for our brand.

Reading Area: Our class has begun the process of designing our reading/working area. This area was torn apart today! books, baskets, boxes, and children were everywhere in the room! We are working to create a space where they can browse for books, a space that will be

• Fourth Grade News and Notes Week of September 2nd

Hello Fourth Grade Families!

Morning Meeting provides an opportunity for building and maintaining classroom community. Our morning meeting begins with greeting each other which sets the tone for our learning day. We look at the agenda for the day, and enjoy an activity or picture book. Morning meeting gets our day started right!

Class Brand Project: Wow! The kids are so full of ideas that this project has expanded! We have a music clip, still shots to accompany it, and a chorus of eight gals who wrote the lyrics and sing our “theme song!” The kids were even featured on the Darby Creek News. This first project is a springboard to a year of collaborative, student directed learning. Ask your fourth grader if they worked on visual, words/music or action shots for our brand.

Reading Area: Our class has begun the process of designing our reading/working area. This area was torn apart today! books, baskets, boxes, and children were everywhere in the room! We are working to create a space where they can browse for books, a

